Hi Maria,

Apologies for the delayed response.

You can submit a request for public records here: <https://azdeq.gov/records>.

If this isn't something you have come across yet, you can review some of the permits generally associated with business types here. You could also review the Individual Permits in Process \(PIP\) Map and Report page for information regarding environmental permits ADEQ is working on. I see you mention that you have already found the October 2022 Yuma County Special Use Permit application for the proposed EValution Energy project in particular, but this page does include further explanation of the environmental permitting process.

As you can imagine, there is variability for many facilities, and ADEQ is one element of many that facilities must work with. I appreciate that you are putting in the effort to learn more and find resources.
